

Master of Education

Christian educators are called to participate in God's work of the redemption and renewal of all things through Christ. The Master of Education course involves engaging, critiquing, and re-forming scholarly educational discourse and practice in light of biblical perspectives. Students will be equipped to re-imagine and develop flourishing and hope-filled learning communities, equipped to contribute to the task of transformative education.

Designed primarily for practitioners seeking to develop their classroom skills, this program fosters reflective practice, critical thinking, and effective communication within Christian education. Participants will refine their craft by deeply engaging with contemporary educational challenges from a faith-based perspective. The course includes research options.

The Masters of Education course is primarily accessed through our Learning Management System (LMS), Moodle, with live class gatherings online offered, providing study flexibility. Assessments are varied and allow students to apply their learning within their local educational context. The first two core subjects can be studied via the NICE@School mode in conjunction with a school or regional host community. NICE@School allows for a blended delivery of face-to-face intensives and live tutorials alongside online study access.

As the postgraduate provider within Christian Education National (CEN), the National Institute for Christian Education fosters a supportive scholarly learning community. Even in a distance-learning environment, students benefit from regular interaction, collaboration, and mentorship alongside like-minded peers. They will also have access to highly qualified senior lecturers and experienced Christian educators, ensuring both academic and practical support throughout their journey.
